

Univ.-Prof. Dr. Diana zu Hohenlohe , LL.M.

Diana zu Hohenlohe is a legal scholar. Studies at the University of Applied Sciences for Public Administration of North Rhine-Westphalia, graduating as qualified Public Administration Specialist. Law Studies at Heinrich Heine University in Düsseldorf, first and second state law examinations with distinction. Doctoral Studies (Dr. iur.) at the Westphalian Wilhelms University of Münster. Master of Laws at the University of Sydney. Worked as a research assistant at the University of Cologne and at the Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law in Heidelberg. Scholarships from the Academy of Sciences and Literature in Mainz and the Max Planck Society for the Advancement of Science. Habilitation at the Goethe University Frankfurt am Main, being awarded the Venia legendi for constitutional and administrative law, international law, canon law and comparative law. Visiting professor at the Friedrich-Alexander-University Erlangen-Nuremberg, substitute professor at the Albert-Ludwigs-University Freiburg im Breisgau, at the Friedrich-Schiller-University Jena and at the University of Trier. Adjunct professorship at the University of Potsdam. Since 15 March 2017, university professor at Sigmund Freud University.